Local Community Cheers the Arlington Heights Chamber and School District 25 for its Commitment to Youth and Entrepreneurship!

South and Thomas Middle Schools Welcomes Young Entrepreneurs Academy

The Arlington Heights Chamber of Commerce and School District 25 are excited to announce plans to launch the YEA! program for South and Thomas Middle School students for the Fall of 2011!

The Young Entrepreneurs Academy is a groundbreaking educational program that takes students through the process of starting and running a REAL business! Students work closely with local business leaders to cultivate and research business ideas, write a business plan, pitch their plan to a panel of investors (think Shark Tank meets The Apprentice meets American Idol!), obtain funding, develop their brand, participate in a Trade Show at the end of the year, and actually launch their enterprise! Through the YEA! program, kids start as students and graduate as CEOs. They learn to make a job—not just take a job!

“We are so excited to participate in the national movement of making experiential entrepreneurship education available to youth all across our country,” said Jon S. Ridler, Chamber Executive Director “This is how, as a society and as a nation, we’re ultimately going to change the world!”

The schools aren’t the only ones who are excited to see the profound impacts the YEA! program will make. Local professionals applaud the community’s collaboration and clear vested interest in the future of business in the area, and anticipate the benefits of this program will reach far beyond the classroom. “The chambers membership is mostly small local business entrepreneurs who support the community of Arlington Heights. Having them regain their entrepreneurial excitement by teaching students how to be one will help gain a much needed burst of energy into our local economy,” said Cindee Manaves, Chamber Board President.

“Not to mention,” says Manaves “then we as a community get to benefit from all the enterprises these students are creating! It sets our community up for a thriving future for years to come, and provides the training our next generation of CEOs need to steer our country towards prosperity and freedom!”

“We are urging all local business leaders to become involved with the program and act as mentors to the budding entrepreneurs.” Ridler stated. By partnering with YEA!, both large and small companies/businesses volunteer their time and services acting as business mentors, field trip hosts, guest lecturers, graphic designers, web developers, attorneys, etc. Community support strengthens the program, and the academy strengthens the community!

The Young Entrepreneurs Academy, or YEA!, is a groundbreaking educational program that takes students in grades six through twelve through the process of starting and running real businesses over the course of a full academic year. Students work in close cooperation with local leaders of industry, community members, and educators to develop ideas and objectives, write business plans, pitch potential investors, obtain funding, register with governmental agencies, develop their brand identity and much more! By the end of the class, students own and operate fully functioning businesses that can be carried on after graduation. Students learn to make a job—not just take a job! YEA!’s direct mission is to help students embrace their passion, energy, creativity and talents, launch a venture, and view entrepreneurship as synonymous with success and freedom. In 2008, YEA! “spun-off” from the University of Rochester, where it was formed in 2004 with support from the Kauffman Foundation, to create its own not-for-profit corporation, YEA! Inc., which is currently launching sites in colleges, universities and high schools across the country to provide comprehensive, exciting entrepreneurship education, leadership development and innovation training to youth between the ages of 11 and 18 years old in the United States thereby making the program available to students at a variety of geographical regions, and providing them with skills they need to succeed in the 21st Century.

For more information on how to apply for the YEA! program, visit www.sd25.org or www.ArlingtonHeightsChamber.com to download details and applications.
